The Olympic National Park & Forest

The Olympic National Park is the crown jewel of the Peninsula. Visitors come from all over the world to take in the diversity of ecosystems in this UNESCO* World Heritage Site and International Biosphere Reserve. The Park is surrounded by the Olympic National Forest with hundreds of trails to wander. You can learn more about the Park and Forest on pages 22-23.

Communities & Cultural Delights

While you are visiting, immerse yourself in the small communities that dot the Olympic Peninsula. See a listing of lodgings, camping, and RV sites beginning on page 30. Each town has its own personality and unique history. Enjoy the local culinary scene at farmer’s markets, restaurants, coffee shops, cideries and wineries. Visit local farms, art galleries and visitor centers to chat with the locals and hear their stories.

Discover the rich native heritage of the Olympic Peninsula. Local tribes share their history and culture at tribal centers, museums, art galleries, and at local events. Take the opportunity to experience the stories of their past and learn about the entrepreneurial endeavors of the present and future.

A visit to the Olympic Peninsula is the perfect escape from the fast pace and hard scape of city life for a romantic getaway, a family outing, or a new adventure with friends. Explore, play, take a deep breath and relax. You’re on the Olympic Peninsula!

United Nations Educational, Scientific & Cultural Organization
The Quinault Valley is the southwestern gateway to the Olympic Peninsula and Olympic National Park. Its magnificent centerpiece is Lake Quinault, that offers easy access to swimming, kayaking, canoeing and sailing from many campgrounds and resorts.

From Coast to Forest
Enjoy scenic ocean shores with easy beach access from both camp sites and rental accommodations nearby in the Kalaloch (pro-nounced clay-lock) area. Beach Trail 4 leads to a pebble beach with teeming tidal pools and dramatic surf (beware of the strong undertow). This beach is also a popular place to net smelt, small fish that come to spawn in the surf during warm, calm weather. North of Kalaloch is picturesque Ruby Beach, named for its sometimes garnet-colored sand.

Inland, explore the “Valley of the Rain Forest Giants” where record-setting evergreen trees thrive. Hike miles of groomed trails, access wild backcountry, fish for world-class salmon and steelhead, bird-watch and hunt for mushrooms under this enchanting canopy of rain forest.

Points of Interest
Lake Quinault Museum:
QuinaultRainforest.com/pages/museum.html
Explore the museum and discover the fascinating history of the Lake Quinault area. Learn about the native Quinaults and the early pioneers who carved a life out of the beautiful, but remote wilderness. The Lake Quinault Museum is located on the South Shore Road of Lake Quinault, adjacent to the Quinault Mercantile and within walking distance of the Lake Quinault Lodge.

Waterfalls: Come when it is raining to experience the very best views of Willaby Creek Falls, Gatton Creek Falls, Merriman Falls, Bunch Creek Falls and more. All are easily accessible from the road or by modest walk.
Valley of the Rain Forest Giants
Averaging 12 feet of rain per year, the Quinault Valley has the ideal climate to grow big conifer trees. It is home to six record-setting giants—the largest western red cedar (which unfortunately fell in July 2016, but can still be viewed), Sitka spruce, Douglas fir, yellow cedar, mountain hemlock and western hemlock trees—as recognized by the National Forestry Association. Only redwoods and sequoias are larger. Some of these giant trees can be seen on a modest to moderate hikes. For more information, contact the Quinault Forest Ranger Station: 360-288-0203.

Quinault Indian Reservation
The Quinault Indian Nation includes the Quinault and Queets tribes and descendants of five other coastal tribes: Quileute, Hoh, Chehalis, Chinook and Cowlitz. They walk the same beaches, paddle the same waters and hunt the same lands as their ancestors did centuries ago. The Quinault Indians traditionally used Lake Quinault as summering grounds. Visit the Quinault Cultural Center in Taholah to see natural and cultural artifacts. Take a fishing trip or beach tour with a Quinault guide to learn about native birds and wildlife.

The Quinault Rain Forest Loop Drive
A 31-mile loop road around Lake Quinault parallels the Quinault River and ventures into Olympic National Park, providing magnificent views into the heart of the Olympic Mountains. There are many easy-access opportunities to take photographs and to view waterfalls and wildlife and explore on foot. View several of the waterfalls listed on the Olympic Peninsula Waterfall Trail along the drive. All are easily accessible from the road or by a modest walk. Enjoy spectacular views of giant trees and the Quinault River along the Loop Drive. Watch for Roosevelt elk, blacktail deer, bald eagles, bobcats, cougars and black bears. Allow two hours minimum to complete the trip by car.

Self-Guided Hiking Trails
Hike the Olympic National Forest trails to experience the rain forest first hand. The trails are well marked and maintained. There are loops of many lengths. Most of the trails are of moderate difficulty with minor hills. Many are suitable for kids and seniors alike.
Forks, La Push & Hoh Rain Forest

So Much to Do!
Forks is the friendly little town catapulted to fame by the Twilight books and movies. Visit the Forks Timber Museum to learn about local history back to the 1870s. Investigate the many intriguing treasures at John’s Beachcombing Museum, collected since 1976 from local beaches. Enjoy the town’s restaurants and stay in its lodgings, both inns and outlying cabins. Because of its convenient location, Forks is the perfect base camp for day excursions on the west side of the Olympic Peninsula. Stop in at Forks Outfitters for camping and hiking supplies. Many trails are pet-friendly, so bring your best friend!

Fishing Adventures
The Bogachiel, Hoh, Sol Duc and Calawah Rivers offer world-class fishing when salmon and steelhead are running. For salmon and other saltwater fish, charter a fishing boat from La Push. Local guides, restaurants and inns cater to fishing enthusiasts, providing pre-dawn breakfasts and packing lunches to go.

Hoh Rain Forest
The dense rain forest valley of the glacier-fed Hoh River is a must-see. These forests thrive sustained by 12 to 16 feet of rainfall a year, not including the 30 inches of tree drip from fog condensing in the canopy. Browsing herds of Roosevelt elk feed on the thick undergrowth and keep it from obscuring the trail view. The Hoh Visitor Center is the starting point for several walks under two miles, as well as longer and more challenging hikes to the glaciers and alpine meadows of Olympic National Park’s interior.

The word “Hoh” is a Native American term meaning “fast moving water” and describes the beautiful Hoh River perfectly. See eagles, elk, otters and other wildlife from the banks or take a trip down the river via kayak, raft or guided drift boat.

La Push & Ocean Beaches
From Forks, drive west to La Push or Rialto on the rugged Pacific Coast and explore its pristine beaches, kayak tidal estuaries and surf coastal waves. Over 70 miles of protected coastline and the Olympic Coast National Marine Sanctuary form the western boundary of the north Olympic Peninsula. Just 16 miles west of Forks at the mouth of the Quillayute River is the coastal village of La Push, home of the Quileute People for thousands of years. La Push offers a marina and services for visitors, including beachfront resort, RV park and restaurant.

Drive to nearby Rialto Beach, also known as Mora, to the north of La Push. Hike forested trails to reach pristine shores at Second and Third Beaches. Mile-wide First Beach in La Push is a popular surfing spot and a favorite place for gray whales to pause and feed on their northward migration. Best viewing is in the morning from mid-February through late May.

Sol Duc River & Valley
Located west of Lake Crescent in the Olympic National Park, the Sol Duc Valley offers many intriguing places to discover. See old-growth forests, explore Sol Duc Falls and Salmon Cascades or relax in the hot springs.

The Sol Duc River, with many camping and recreational opportunities, is abundant with salmon, steelhead and cutthroat trout. This 78-mile river runs through the valley on its way to the Quillayute River in La Push. Enjoy scenic views while crossing the Sol Duc River five times between Forks and Port Angeles.

Sol Duc Hatchery is just off Mary Clark Road (north of milepost 203, Hwy. 101). Enjoy self-guided walking tours of the Sol Duc Salmon Hatchery Interpretive Center and rearing ponds. Open daily. Guided group tours available by request. • 360-327-3246
The Strait of Juan de Fuca Scenic Byway: State Highway 112

One of the nation’s National Scenic Byways, State Highway 112 follows the scenic shoreline of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, which connects Puget Sound to the Pacific Ocean and separates the Olympic Peninsula from Vancouver Island, Canada. This dramatic coastline extends farther into the North Pacific than any other mainland point in the lower 48 states. Its winding route is beautiful year round, changing with the seasons.

View rugged cliffs and thick forests, watch for oft-seen eagles, otters and gray whales. Visit the Joyce General Store and Depot Museum, Salt Creek Recreation Area with beach access and tide pools and fishing villages of Clallam Bay, Sekiu and Neah Bay, on the Makah Indian Reservation. Take a side trip to scenic Lake Ozette.

Joyce

This small town evolved from Port Crescent, a boom town that vied with Port Angeles in the late 1800s. An 1890 election named Port Angeles the county seat, thereby diminishing Port Crescent’s importance. Later the community moved to its present location, renamed as Joyce. The Joyce Depot Museum has displays from old Port Crescent days. The Joyce General Store celebrated its 100th birthday in 2011. Nearby Salt Creek Recreation Area and Freshwater Bay are popular camping and recreation sites.

Clallam Bay/Sekiu

Separated by just two miles of beach, the communities of Clallam Bay and Sekiu look across the Strait of Juan de Fuca to Vancouver Island, Canada. Enjoy outstanding sport fishing. Go beachcombing and find abundant marine life. Enjoy hiking, birding, kayaking and wildlife watching. Lodging, campgrounds, restaurants, grocery stores, espresso and gas/propane are available.

Find treasures, bargains, arts and crafts, produce and lunch as you travel through forests and alongside beaches from west of Port Angeles to Neah Bay. Take your time, enjoy the drive!
Clallam Bay, Sekiu & Neah Bay/Cape Flattery

Create a great family adventure with miles of beaches, dramatic tide pools, kayaking, surfing, scuba diving and hiking in nearby wilderness. Bird watchers and photographers flock to spot puffins, marbled murrelets, migrating swans, raptors, bald eagles and coastal birds, many of which winter on the coast. Gray and humpback whales, orcas and sea otters are frequent visitors to our shores. Sekiu is a world-famous recreational fishing destination—record-breaking salmon and halibut have been caught offshore. The community offers all the services for sport fishing, including charter trips and boat rentals.

Coastal Recreation

Sekiu and Clallam Bay are near the turn-off road to Lake Ozette, located along a Pacific coast sliver of the Olympic National Park. Here hiking trails lead to miles of unspoiled ocean beaches. A nine-mile triangle hike from Ozette to Cape Alava to Sand Point passes ancient petroglyphs. To the north, Shi Shi Beach was named one of the “Top 10 Campgrounds for Experts” by Sunset Magazine in 2014 — because you must hike in. The trek is well worth it to experience one of the most spectacular stretches on the Olympic coastline.

Neah Bay & Cape Flattery

Neah Bay and the Makah Indian Reservation are at the tip of the Olympic Peninsula where Highway 112 ends and the Cape Flattery Tribal Scenic Byway begins. Visit the Makah Cultural Center to learn about the “Ozette Dig” and see archeological artifacts unearthed from a 16th century Makah village. Continue west to Cape Flattery — the most northwestern point in the contiguous U.S. and part of the Makah Indian Reservation. Follow the cedar-plank boardwalk trail to view the Pacific Ocean and Strait of Juan de Fuca. On clear days, spot Tatoosh Island, a sacred place for the Makah, and its lighthouse. Also look for sea caves, sea otters, cormorants, eagles and falcons. In summer, Makah interpreters on the trail share the history and culture of the area, plus traditional uses of native plants. There is no entrance fee to hike the trail, but a $10 annual Makah Tribe Recreational Permit, available at many local businesses, must be purchased.
Nestled between the Olympic Range and the Strait of Juan de Fuca

Port Angeles, the largest city on the Olympic Peninsula, has made its mark with colorful history as an active deep water seaport since the mid-1850s. Its location provides the best transit across the Strait of Juan de Fuca to Victoria, Canada, via the Blackball Ferry Line. The MV Coho Ferry crosses in 90 minutes and operates daily except during annual dry dock service late January to early February.

The snowcapped Olympic Mountains form a dramatic backdrop south of Port Angeles. A short 18-mile drive from the city leads to Hurricane Ridge, one of the most visited areas in Olympic National Park.

Downtown Happenings

Port Angeles’ recently renovated downtown is a great place to view harbor activities. The City Pier offers magnificent views of ships at anchor and the City of Victoria, Canada, 18 miles across the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Visit the pier’s Feiro Marine Life Center with exhibits on protecting marine resources. Adjacent is the Olympic Coast Discovery Center in The Landing Mall. Learn about the ocean and underwater landscape, maritime history, marine wildlife, habitats and traditional cultures.

Take a guided tour of historical Port Angeles to see sections of its famed underground or view colorful murals depicting local lore. Enjoy Art on the Town, a display of over 56 outdoor sculptures. It includes the Avenue of the People, a permanent outdoor art display of ordinary people doing things about town. Take a guided Art Walk through downtown or browse the cafés, restaurants, galleries, boutiques, gift shops, independent bookstores and antique shops on your own.

The bustling Farmers’ Market showcases local produce, food treats and crafts. It is open year round every Saturday. Visit local wineries and breweries for tastings. Many events are held year round—see “2017 Festivals & Events” on pages 22–23.

Downtown Port Angeles also has easy access to the Olympic Discovery Trail, popular with walkers, joggers and bicyclists (see page 30). Specialty shops supply gear for kayaking, hiking, camping, biking, fishing, scuba diving and skateboarding. In winter, skiing, snowshoeing and snowboarding sales and rentals are available.

Lake Crescent

Half an hour west of Port Angeles on Hwy 101 is idyllic Lake Crescent, a 12-mile-long lake known for its deep, clear, turquoise waters. A historic national park lodge built in 1916 perches on the south shore. Along the north shore of Lake Crescent is the Spruce Railroad Trail, former railroad tracks converted into a biking and hiking trail. Camping, rentals and groceries are available nearby. Two waterfalls are also close by. Marymere Falls is a short hike from Lake Crescent Lodge. Madison Falls in the Elwha Valley is wheelchair accessible.

Sequim & the Dungeness Valley

Small-Town Charm
Named the “2017 Best Northwestern Small Town” by USA Today, Sequim truly captures the atmosphere of a small, friendly community. Enjoy browsing boutiques and art galleries in the quaint downtown, savor a meal at one of the local restaurants and take in the spectacular surrounding scenery. Visit during one of Sequim’s events and festivals and get to know some of the people who make this a special community.

Outdoor Fun in the Sun
Due to the “rain shadow” caused by the Olympic Mountains, Sequim is one of the driest places in Western Washington. It is even home to a tiny prickly pear cactus. Averaging just 16 inches of annual rainfall, Sequim is the perfect destination for outdoor adventure. Bring your binoculars to better enjoy the area’s wonderful vistas as you hike, bike, kayak, golf and bird-watch.

Rich in Agricultural Heritage
Sequim is known for its organic fruits and vegetables and the fragrant herb lavender. In the summer, pause at roadside stands and U-pick farms for raspberries, blackberries, blueberries and strawberries. Shop the Sequim Farmers’ Market for the freshest local produce.

Visit local lavender farms to pick your own sweet bouquets and purchase hand-crafted lavender products. Many farms are open for U-pick from July through September.

Also enjoy local products from the Dungeness Valley Creamery and savor the native Dungeness crab.

Dungeness Spit & Lighthouse
At 5.5 miles in length, the Dungeness Spit is the longest naturally occurring sand spit in North America. It encompasses the Dungeness National Wildlife Refuge, a sanctuary for shorebirds, marine life and mammals ranging from seals to Columbian black-tailed deer. Trails and picnic areas offer sweeping views of the beaches, Dungeness Harbor and the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Hike or paddle to the end of the spit to see the New Dungeness Lighthouse, built in 1857 and listed on the National Register of Historic Places. It has been manned by The New Dungeness Light Station Association since 1994 and offers the opportunity to be a “Lighthouse Keeper” for a week. Go at low tide if hiking and in calm seas if boating or kayaking. Call ahead for reservations as water access is limited to minimize disturbance to marine mammals and birds.

Port Ludlow

Once a logging and ship-building town, Port Ludlow is now a vibrant community with a 37-room boutique waterfront inn, 300-slip marina and championship 18-hole golf course, recognized as the “Most Scenic in the World” by Esquire Magazine. The inn’s award-winning restaurant, The Fireside, offers sweeping views of Ludlow Bay and a daily menu featuring the bounty of local farm produce, artisan meats and cheese. Port Ludlow is less than a 10-minute drive from the west end of the Hood Canal Bridge.

For outdoor adventures, take a kayak or stand-up paddle board out on Ludlow Bay and explore the twin islands. Hike or bike 26 miles of maintained trails and experience Port Ludlow’s magical views and abundant wildlife. Head out into Puget Sound to drop crab pots or cast a line for salmon. Simply relax on the beach and admire stunning views across the water.

Chimacum, Port Hadlock & Nordland/Marrowstone Is.

These rural communities were home to agriculture, iron smelting and the lumber industry. While the latter two have mostly disappeared, new farms and a Chimacum cidery have sprung up to provide “farm to table” culinary treats.

Parks and campgrounds provide recreation opportunities year round. Catch fish in freshwater lakes or saltwater bays. Gather clams and oysters when in season from many public beaches. Go kite and wind surfing off south Indian Island beaches during the brisk breezes of fall, winter and spring.

Marrowstone Island is home to several artists’ studios and a vineyard with tasting room. Fort Flagler State Park commands the island’s tip with old gun batteries, over 10 miles of hiking trails and views of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Puget Sound.

Quilcene & Brinnon

These two small towns lie between a scenic stretch of Hwy 101, which hugs the shore of the great fjord called Hood Canal, and the eastern edge of the Olympic National Forest. Both towns provide access to hiking trails of all levels and great camping. Trek through the park for a week, day-hike to a breathtaking location or take a short stroll with a picnic. Camp in the heart of either town, in the forest or along the beach.

Quilcene and Brinnon are the gateway to sheltered, deep-water marinas, three major rivers, clam and oyster beaches, and great bird and wildlife viewing. Kayak, go boating, scuba dive, fish and swim. Attend a concert. Visit the Quilcene Historical Museum, major oyster farms and seven-acre Whitney Gardens, world-renowned as a rhododendron nursery. Enjoy the 120-foot waterfall at Falls View Campground, Mount Walker viewpoints and Rocky Brook Falls, all just a few minutes’ drive from either community.

Two Visitors Centers provide detailed maps and up-to-date information. One is in the Quilcene Forest Service Ranger Station and the other in the Brinnon Community Center.

Experience the Wild Side of Washington

Like a giant fish hook weaving beneath the Olympics with a web of inlets, Hood Canal is poised to catch your imagination and reel in memories for years to come. This majestic saltwater fjord hosts unparalleled shellfish, shrimp, crab, and salmon and is renowned as a diving mecca with its glacial formation causing underwater biomes that appear nowhere else. Venture away from the Canal to Olympic National Park and Olympic National Forest for hiking and thrilling vistas. Choose from hundreds of easy access freshwater lakes or revel in waterfall views including the iconic High Steel Bridge. Ablaze with wildflowers in the spring, hidden swimming holes in the summer, a chance to see spawning salmon in the fall, and snow-capped peaks in the winter, there is never an inopportune time to visit Hood Canal.

Hood Canal’s Coastal Towns Welcome You

As Highway 101 meanders along the Canal, catch glimpses of sparkling views between the quaint towns. Belfair, less than an hour from Bremerton, hosts the birder’s paradise, Theler Wetlands Preserve and is near Tahuya State Forest, a 23,000-acre forest with extensive ORV trails. Union’s art community embraces visitors with spectacular views and amenities including Alderbrook Resort & Spa and Harmony Hill, a world-famous healing center. Top Picks

Beach Hikes: Olympic’s wild beaches look just like they did when wooden ships searched for the elusive Northwest Passage. Explore them on a half-day hike to a five-day trek. Highlights: the Ozette Wilderness Loop, Third Beach near La Push, Beach 4 near Kalaloch, and Ruby Beach with its glittering sand.

Sol Duc Hot Springs: Sol Duc Hot Springs Resort, featuring three hot pools, a freshwater swimming pool, food service and rental cabins. A great place to soak, especially after hiking to Sol Duc Falls or returning from the back country.

Rain Forests: Visit temperate rain forests – among the few on the planet – in the Hoh, Queets, Quinault and Bogachiel valleys. They are emerald wonderlands of moss-draped trees – including some record-holding giants – highlighted by golden maple trees in the fall.

Alpine Regions: Start at Hurricane Ridge for several ridge-top strolls. Then try bolder backcountry hikes to the Hoh, Quinault and Elwha valleys. Lena Lake Trail is also very popular.

South Hood Canal: The Staircase entrance offers several short day hikes that explore the area; they range from flat strolls to more challenging trails, some gaining over 3,000 feet in elevation. Longer hikes, like the North Fork Skokomish River trail, take a couple of days.

Olympic National Forest & Other Area Parks

Olympic National Forest

Olympic National Forest (ONF) covers over 633,000 acres, nearly encircling the entire Olympic National Park. It offers a wide range of recreation, including hiking, camping, picnicking and boating, in a diverse landscape ranging from verdant rain forests to deep canyons and high mountain ridges. There are more than 250 miles of trails, many of which wander through ancient old-growth forests. Dogs are welcome on all ONF lands.

ONF also has a bounty of edible delicacies. Pick wild berries in the late summer months and gather mushrooms in the fall. Seal Rock Campground on the Hood Canal allows harvesting of oysters for personal consumption. Be aware of the daily limit and other state guidelines. For more information, please visit: www.FS.USDA.gov/Olympic

Mt. Walker Viewpoint’s panoramic views of Puget Sound can be found 4.1 miles off Highway 101, south of Quilcene. The parking lot is accessible to vehicles spring through fall. This road is steep and not recommended for vehicles pulling trailers. From the parking lot, follow a short loop trail to spectacular views.

ONF operates 17 campgrounds on a first-come, first-served basis with varying fees. The five designated Wilderness areas do not require wilderness permits, but a Northwest Forest Pass is required for vehicles parked at many ONF trailheads. Three historic cabins are available for overnight lodging – the Hamma Hamma, Interrorem and Louella. These can be reserved through the National Recreation Reservation system at Recreation.gov.

Other Area Parks

In addition to our national park and national forest, the Olympic Peninsula offers 13 state parks and nearly 100 county, city and privately operated parks for outdoor recreation. Discover opportunities for biking, walking, horseback riding, fishing, boating, beachcombing and more. Many state and county parks also offer excellent camping facilities. For campsites during the busy summer months, reservations are encouraged where available.

Olympic Coast National Marine Sanctuary

The 3,189 square nautical miles of protected marine waters off the rugged Olympic Peninsula coastline is home to an abundance of marine mammals, fish and seabirds. It extends 25 to 40 miles seaward, covering much of the continental shelf and several major submarine canyons. Along its shores are thriving intertidal communities, teeming with fish, kelp and other sea life. Along the sea bed, scattered communities of deep sea coral and sponges form habitats for fish and other important marine wildlife. • OlympicCoast.NOAA.gov
Celebrate the Elwha

Mother Nature Restored by Dam Removal
The removal of 100-year-old Elwha and Glines Canyon dams on the Elwha River began in mid-September 2011, as the largest dam removal and restoration project in U.S. history. Today, with both dams gone, the Elwha River flows freely through the valley from its headwaters in the Olympic Mountains to the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Lake Mills and Lake Aldwell reservoirs drained, and for the first time in a century, salmon and other migratory fish returned within months to 70 miles of spawning habitat. The fish bring with them the promise of a restored ecosystem and renewed cultural tradition for the Lower Elwha Klallam Tribe.

Elwha River Restoration Viewpoints
There are two locations to view the old dam sites. The Glines Canyon Overlook at former Lake Mills has remnants of the old dam with interpretive panels along the viewing walkway and trails along the former shores and lakebed. Turn south onto Olympic Hot Springs Rd. just east of the Elwha River Bridge to access the Glines Canyon Overlook. The previous site of the Elwha Dam at the former Lake Aldwell can be found off Hwy 112 between Milepost 60-61 and Lower Dam Rd., which is now home to the newly-erected Elwha Interpretive Center. • 360-565-3130

Water Adventures
The Olympic Peninsula has many lakes, rivers and shorelines that offer fresh and saltwater opportunities for water adventures.
Surfing: La Push’s First Beach and Neah Bay’s Hobuck Beach.
Stand Up Paddling (SUP): Lake Crescent and the sandy beaches of Crescent Bay and Salt Creek Recreation Area.
Kayaking: Hood Canal’s shores and the Strait of Juan de Fuca’s coast from Port Townsend to Neah Bay.
Rafting and kayaking: Hoh, Quillayute and Sol Duc rivers.
Small boats: Sequim Bay, Port Angeles Harbor and Clallam Bay, plus area lakes.
Water recreation + birds and sea life: Freshwater Bay, west of Port Angeles, and protected Dungeness Bay, north of Sequim.
Diving: Surrounded on three sides by water, the Olympic Peninsula has some of the best diving on the West Coast. There are many locations around the coast of the Peninsula that offer diving and marine services.
Freshwater diving: Lake Crescent and Lake Ozette.
Saltwater diving: Hood Canal is world-renowned for its waters’ clarity in the off-season.
Advanced diving: open coastal waters of the National Marine Sanctuary.
Wildlife Viewing
The Olympic Peninsula is one of the best places to view diverse wildlife at close proximity. The Olympic National Park (ONP) Visitor Center has information on indigenous species and safety information about animals better not seen up close, such as black bear, mountain goats, bobcats and cougar.

Roosevelt elk: in the lower ONP areas and often seen around the peninsula.

Mountain goats and marmots: in ONP at higher altitudes.

Fishers: re-introduced into the ONP in 2008 but elusive.

Eagles, falcons and hawks: raptors populate many areas of the peninsula.

Salmon: fall is spawning season for several salmon species in rivers and streams.

Black-tailed deer: frequently spotted in the hills and lowlands.

Sailing/Marinas
The Strait of Juan de Fuca offers a challenging and exhilarating sailing experience. Enjoy calmer sailing and boating in Hood Canal, a glacial fjord with many secluded coves, beaches and local marinas at Quilcene Boat Haven and Pleasant Harbor. Other marinas offer public moorage in Port Townsend, Port Hadlock and Port Ludlow. Along the strait, Port Angeles Harbor and Sequim Bay have protected moorage for small craft.

Ocean fishing marinas include world-renowned Sekiu, Clallam Bay and Neah Bay. On the Pacific Ocean coast, La Push features saltwater charter fishing.

Birding
Enthusiasts come to the Olympic Peninsula from around the world to watch for more than 300 species of birds, including bald eagles, marbled murrelets, brants, falcons, dippers and widgeons. Popular coastal viewing areas include Cape Flattery, Neah Bay, along Hwy 112, Port Angeles’ waterfront and Ediz Hook, Dungeness Spit and Marrowstone Island east of Port Townsend.

Protection Island at the head of Discovery bay provides nesting habitat to 70% of Puget Sound’s seabird population. Bald eagles, harbor seals and deer from the mainland also feed and breed here. Though no access to the island is permitted, several companies offer boat tours to view this 364-acre site from the water.

Inland, go bird-watching by the upper waters of Dungeness and Gray Wolf Rivers in Olympic National Forest and at Hurricane Ridge in the Olympic National Park. The Dungeness River Audubon Center at Railroad Bridge Park offers free Wednesday morning bird walks year round. Visit DungenessRiverCenter.org for more information.

Touring the Olympic Peninsula

Motorcyclists find U.S. Hwy. 101 an exhilarating ride around the entire Olympic Peninsula. The route includes sweeping views of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, Pacific Ocean, Olympic Mountains and Hood Canal. Plus, great routes branch off Hwy 101 for side trips:

- Hwy 112, one of the newest Scenic Byways, hugs the coast with plenty of pullouts to stop and watch for whales.
- Old Olympic Highway near Sequim through U-pick farms and lavender fields.
- Hwy 20 from Discovery Bay to Port Townsend and Fort Flagler State Park.
- The winding road up to Hurricane Ridge with sweeping views at the top.
- Roads into the Olympic National Park to Sol Duc Hot Springs and the Hoh Rain Forest.
- Hwy 101 along the glacier-carved fjord of Hood Canal.
Take a Magical Misty Tour

The Olympic Peninsula Waterfall Trail offers year-round adventure and dramatic beauty. In spring, see roaring rivers and thundering waterfalls created by snowmelt and spring showers. In summer’s warmth, dangle your feet in a cool pool at the base of falls. Scout waterfalls amidst turning autumn leaves and glorious fall color. Take an adventure to a waterfall in winter for a fairyland world of icicles and snow.

All seasons are photogenic. Share them on the waterfall website. Visit OlympicPeninsulaWaterfallTrail.com. On the website you’ll find the following resources:

Fresh & Local
The Olympic Peninsula’s shorelines and farms produce a bounty of fresh delicacies. Shellfish beds and saltwater beaches supply plump oysters, shrimp, geoducks and clams. Glacier-turned soils grow many crops in the mild climate. Savor excellent berries and fruit, and sample honey from apiaries. Enjoy abundant produce and herbs, creamery products from dairy farms and bakery goods made with local grains.

Be a Culinary Adventurer
Take your taste buds on tour by doing the Olympic Culinary Loop. Sample chefs’ offerings created with sustainable, locally-grown and foraged ingredients for farm-to-table experiences. Visit farmers markets and take in culinary events. Taste handcrafted local wines, microbrews and ciders. Download the Olympic Culinary Adventure map to find farms, producers and restaurants at OlympicCulinaryLoop.com & Facebook.com/OlympicCulinaryLoop.

Olympic Peninsula RV/Camp Guide

RVing & camping are popular pastimes on the Olympic Peninsula. Whether you’re looking for an alpine forest, a mossy valley or peaceful rocky beach you’ll find a rewarding location to experience. Accommodations vary widely from full amenities to remotely rustic and between federal, state, county, city and private sites. Most are open year round. Keep in mind that summer months are busiest and spots fill up fast on weekends.

It is best to reserve a spot in advance, but note that all sites within Olympic National Park except those at Olympic National Park & Forest lodges (listed on page 22) are on a first-come first-served basis.
